

OH&S Announces 2017 New Product of the Year Award Winners.

DALLAS, September 6, 2017 – Nineteen companies, including multiple winner Honeywell, were honored today for winning Occupational Health & Safety magazine’s ninth annual New Product of the Year contest. Winners will be recognized with awards this fall and in the December issue of Occupational Health & Safety magazine. They are also featured on Occupational Health & Safety’s industry-leading website, ohsonline.com.

This year’s contest attracted entries in 21 award categories, with an independent panel of three highly qualified judges choosing the winners.

“This year was our ninth annual New Product of the Year contest, and the judges’ scores in several categories—especially electrical safety, foot protection, fall protection/prevention, hand protection, and respiratory protection—were the closest I can remember from any of the contests so far. And we had ties in two other categories, industrial hygiene and online training. What a great showing from all of the entrants!” said OH&S Editor Jerry Laws. “It’s a testament to the manufacturers in this industry who are constantly working to develop more comfortable, more protective, more robust new products for their customers as they compete in this fast-growing global market. Informing our readers and online audience about the best new products available to solve their safety and health challenges has always been at the heart of our magazine’s mission, from 1932 up to today, and this contest is an essential extension of our outreach to the industry. Readers will see all of the winners featured in our December 2017 issue.”

“I congratulate all of our 2017 contest winners and extend my thanks to every company that entered. We hope all of them will participate again in next year’s contest.”

The 2017 contest’s judges were Linda J. Sherrard, CSP, MS, Safety Consultant II for the NCDPS Central Prison Healthcare Complex (Raleigh, NC); Greg Zigulis, CIH, CSP, president of Sixth Sense Safety Solutions (Rogers City, MI); and Chuck Paulausky, CHMM, president of CP Safety & Environmental, LLC (Chandler, AZ).

“Great lineup!” Sherrard said of this year’s entrants. “Some very nice and needed innovations!”

Zigulis said of one entry in the safety barriers category, “seems very good for improving safety.”
